

January Report from Cambs TVR Region

Happy New Year – here's to a great 2009 and a fantastic TVR year with every event being blessed with sunshine and clear blue skies.....well that's what I asked Santa for and I've been a good girl so fingers crossed!

The annual C.R.A.P went well with everyone getting into the spirit of the event. The weekend started off well on Friday night with a sumptuous feast of homemade curry, lasagne and all the trimmings – everything had been prepared by our honorary TVR member, Judy (her of SLK ownership) and me thinks that she may have got herself the job of being head chef at any future event – BIG THANKS to Judy.

Saturday saw everyone dispersing into several smaller groups, the hardier of them heading over to the sea front to take a brisk walk along the beach to see the seals .The weather was to say the least as damp as a squid and the wind, well don't ask me about the wind but on hindsight that may have had something to do with the curry the night before! Some of us braved the weather, drove along the coast and even ventured into Great Yarmouth, but upon arrival promptly turned around & headed back to the cottages for coffee and cake in front of the telly!

The Ghost and Ghouls party was on Sat evening, and the customs were so good that it was hard trying to work out who was who at the beginning. Steve & Lisa were the eventual winners with the best costumes and unbeknown to the judges they also bought the trophy! I personally do have a favourite moment of the whole evening which was when the Dalek got his plunger stuck to the fridge door – it was one of those “Beadles About” moments when I wish I'd got the camera rolling and could have earned myself a few quid!

Sunday morning came around too soon with a few sore heads and after reviewing the photographic evidence of the previous nights activities all I can say it that I am open to bribery or may even stoop to blackmail – be warned you know you are!

I've run out of space this month, so all that's left is for me to wish you all a very Happy and prosperous 2009!

Take care till next time,
Zoe.
